

Law Enforcement

© 2001 Rod Hess

God sends His angels to help others in need, to protect them from harm and other hurtful deeds.
The forces of darkness — they put up a good fight,
but in the end, the truth always comes to light.

As one who has been entrusted to uphold the law,
you have a thankless job in protecting us all.
Please don't get discouraged and I ask if you would,
remember that you stand for all that is good.

So, to help you protect those in need that you find,
here's an Angel Guardian who will stay close by your side.
To guide and protect you and to keep you safe,
as you risk your life to make the world a better place.

.....

Sadly, upholding the law is a thankless job. When someone is in a potentially life threatening situation and needs help, the men and women of law enforcement willingly put their lives on the line to answer the call and fix the problem. The light can serve as a beacon of strength and support to help officers to cope with the daily stress of bringing light to a culture of darkness.

○ A great gift for the police academy graduate who is about to start a career in law enforcement.